Goals and Objectives: New Generation Sunshine State Standards that apply to this project:

READING PROCESS: Standard 5: Fluency: The student demonstrates the ability to read grade level text orally with accuracy, appropriate rate, and expression.

- LA.910.1.5.In.a Read text with accuracy
- LA.910.1.5.In.b Adjust reading rate based on purpose (e.g. for pleasure, information, and task completion) and difficulty

WRITING: LA.910.4.1.In.b Write expressive forms (e.g. poems, plays, songs) that include rhythm and rhyme, dialogue, appropriate format, and figurative language for the intended audience or purpose.

LITERARY ANALYSIS (FICTION)

- LA.1112.2.1.3 The student will analyze, compare, evaluate, and interpret poetry for the effects of various literary devices, graphics, structure, and theme to convey mood, meaning, and aesthetic qualities;
- LA.1112.2.1.5 The student will analyze and discuss characteristics of subgenres (e.g., satire, parody, allegory) that overlap or cut across the lines of genre classifications such as poetry, novel, drama, short story, essay or editorial;
- LA.1112.2.1.7 The student will analyze, interpret, and evaluate an author's use of descriptive language (e.g., tone, irony, mood, imagery, pun, alliteration, onomatopoeia, allusion), figurative language (e.g., symbolism, metaphor, personification, hyperbole), common idioms, and mythological and literary allusions, and explain how they impact meaning in a variety of texts with an emphasis on how they evoke reader's emotions;
- LA.1112.2.1.6 The student will select a variety of age and ability appropriate fiction materials to read based on knowledge of authors styles, themes, and genres to expand the core foundation of knowledge necessary to connect topics and function as a fully literate member of a shared culture.

VOCABULARY DEVELOPMENT: LA.910.1.6.In.a Use new vocabulary that is introduced and taught directly.

- LA.910.1.6.In.b Listen to, read, and discuss a variety of text.
- LA.910.1.6.In.c Use context clues and graphics to determine meanings of unknown words.
- LA.910.1.6.In.h Identify word relationships (e.g. common analogies) and their meaning.
- LA.910.1.6.In.i Determine the meaning of a word with multiple meanings (e.g. homographs) in text.
- LA.910.1.6.In.j Determine the meaning of unknown words using a dictionary and digital tools.

TARGET TECHNOLOGY: LA.910.6.4.In.a Use appropriate available technologies to enhance communication.

TARGET PUBLISHING: LA.910.3.5.In.a Prepare writing in a format appropriate to audience and purpose.

- LA.910.3.5.In.b Use required spacing and margins to indicate paragraphs and other key features of text and include graphics and illustrations as needed.
- LA.910.3.5.In.c Share writing with the intended audience.

LISTENING AND SPEAKING: LA.910.5.2.In.a Use a specified listening strategy according to the intended purpose (e.g. solving a problem, remembering information).

- LA.910.5.2.In.b Give oral presentations with a clear introduction and conclusion.
- LA.910.5.2.In.c Adjust voice and body movement as appropriate for speaking in real-world situations.
- LA.910.5.2.In.d Use oral language appropriate for formal and informal situations.

Gather and organize information for oral presentations and integrate appropriate media.
Teen Expressions Poetry Slam:

Project Description: Students in Intensive Reading and Gifted English classes will write, publish, and recite their original poetry in front of an audience of their peers, teachers, families and community members. The Teen Expressions Poetry Slam is an avenue for students to explore many forms of language, vocabulary, and creative forms of self expression. Our students are often hesitant to engage in self reflection and this will provide them with a way to express and examine their feelings using poetry as an outlet.

Not only did these students recite their personal poems, they delved into their inner selves and gained personal strengths and self confidence that are perhaps immeasurable but nonetheless invaluable. Teen Expressions Poetry Slam was a fourth quarter ten week project that successfully supported a high level of student engagement and increased student attendance by 12% and helped to prevent the students dropping out and reduce the rate of truancy at a crucial time of year.

Often students resist making presentations especially when reciting writing that is very personal to them in front of an audience of their peers and family, but despite the trepidation of public speaking these students were so excited to put on this student centered project.

Project Summary

If you are seeking a class full of engaged and excited students that are bubbling with ideas, then putting on a poetry slam is just for you. This Teen Expressions Poetry Project is a language and vocabulary based unit project that can be used from grades 7th through 12th in Intensive to Gifted/Honors classes. Students take an active role in exploring vivid language and language patterns as they express their emotions and ideas. It is also a student-centered, process-oriented project that offers students opportunities to use technology in a variety of ways while holding students accountable as they are assessed authentically. One of the vital elements that aid the success of this unit project is the student-centered aspect. I suggest that the teacher give students multiple opportunities for making choices and their input is sought on many of the major decisions for the poetry slam.

One of the rewarding things about having a poetry slam is the teacher acts as facilitator by gradually releasing the responsibilities to the students through committee work. I suggest that the teacher secure the date and times early in the year with their principal and the activities director so that you can garner the support you may need from administrators and staff. Also, this unit project offers a series of lessons that the teacher can select from in order to teach poetry writing/reading strategies prior to the culminating event of the poetry slam. The lessons provide a variety of skills and strategies such as the practice of reading fluently and analyzing, research skills, compare and contrast, creative and descriptive writing, repeated reading strategies, and a cooperative group poem activity to name a few.

You can start with the slam on a smaller scale and then expand it the following year. The first year I did the slam I did it on a smaller scale with my intensive reading students and it was a good experience. The following year, after the FCAT, I did the slam with my gifted class taking the lead on the committee work and all my intensive reading classes participating. The second year, I was awarded “The Education Fund Citibank Success Fund/Citigroup Team Mentor Grant” and the poetry slam was the highlight of my teaching experience. It was an awesome extravaganza. The students were fully engaged, my class attendance and average grades increased as much as 15% from the prior year, and no one dropped out.

Lesson Plans

Activity One: Activating Prior Knowledge and Gaining Experience Expressing Feelings through poetry: Teacher place students in cooperative groups of three or with partners and have students complete the “Introduction to Writing Poetry” sheet (See sheet under materials).

- In cooperative groups, students will think, pair, share and complete the Introduction to Poetry sheet.
- Teacher will perform a whole group sweep of students’ answers and discuss their prior experience with writing poetry and knowledge of figurative language and poetry devices.
- To help motivate students to express their ideas/feelings and work cooperatively, the teacher will have students write a free verse class poem.
- Teacher will map and webs various topics and the class will select one topic.
- Teacher will solicit students’ knowledge of the topic and list their responses on the board.
- As students review list on the board, the teacher will ask each student to write one verse for the poem.
- Teacher will sweep the class asking each student for their verse and write down their entry on the board with each student’s name next to their entry. Class will coral or echo read the completed poem.
- Teacher will ask each student for their editing remarks to revise order of entries so that the poem flows logically. Students and teacher will provide feedback on the poem by completing an exit slip writing their likes/dislikes or their favorite part of the class poem.
- Teacher will ask for a volunteer to write or type it for the class. Each class poem will be displayed on a bulletin board.

For Vocabulary Build-up: To increase students base of knowledge of poetic terms, literary poetic devices, and figurative language the teacher can show “The Elements of Poetry Understanding Literature” DVD and have students take Cornell notes on terms (see materials for multiple choice quiz; teacher made/criteria–referenced and the key). Another comprehensive vocabulary resource is called Glossary of Literary Terms (specific to poetry) http://www.xmarks.com/site/www.bedfordstmartins.com/literature/bedlit/glossary_a.htm

Activity Two: Exposing students to various forms of poetry:

- Teacher will introduce a variety of poems by various poets on a variety of subjects and themes, classical and contemporary, (a class visit to the library media center to read various books on poetry is a beneficial to foster students exploration) to students so that they are exposed to many types of poems and poets such as Memory by Margaret Walker, Rocking by Gabriela Mistral, Woman’s Work by Julia Alvarez, Richard Cory by Edwin Arlington Robinson, Fire and Ice by Robert Frost, Still I Rise by Maya Angelou, Mother to Son by Langston Hughes, I Dream a World by Langston Hughes, The Red Wheelbarrow by William Carlos William, Edward Hirsch by Edward Hirsch, A Fantasy by Louise Gluck, Casey at the Bat by Ernest Lawrence Thayer.
- It is a good idea for the teacher to select poems that he/she enjoys so that his/her enthusiasm permeates throughout the class.
- Teacher will take students to visit the media center to research books on poetry (librarian can prepare a display of poetry books and librarian can perform a book talk on such books as Poem Crazy by Susan Goldsmith Wooldridge and Immersed in Verse by Allan Wolf. Students can share and recite the poems that they enjoy in front of the class.

- Teacher can review types of poems with students to familiarize students with various forms of poetry (see types of poems - Materials).
- Lead into explication activity: After exposure to these poems students can begin consider their favorite poet/poem and consider which poem they would like to use for their poetry explication (see Activity Five).

Extension For Intensive Reading classes - Prior to writing their personal poetry books the Teacher can also have students read “Keefa’s House” by Helen Frost (novel has six main characters each student can select to read a character’s part which is about six teenagers dealing with array of issues from teen pregnancy, foster care, gay pride, DUI).

Activity Three Cooperative Group Poem: Students will then work in a group to formulate a contemporary poem (see Directions for roles when building a cooperative group poem). This is an opportunity for students to play with language patterns and figurative and poetic devices.

- To integrate groups, teacher can pass out numbers from a container and randomly group students by numbers or group students, three students per group is ideal, being careful to integrate higher and lower verbal ability students.
- Teacher will explain/model in whole group setting how a group would work and that each student will have a role in formulating their cooperative group poem (see Directions for group roles when building a group poem – Materials)
- The teacher will demonstrate how each member will brainstorm words and images to be woven into poem to create a contemporary poem. (teacher can use Hirsch by Hirsch and Louise Gluck as samples of contemporary poems – Materials)
- Teacher can play jazz, blow bubbles, and offer tea and biscuits to motivate creative thinking of students (see picture on cover).

Activity Four Compare and Contrast Traditional/Classical versus Contemporary Poem
- Students will read, discuss, compare, and interpret a variety of poems by various poets.
- Teacher will have students’ (Students can work individually or with a partner) research biographical information on both Emily Dickenson and Tupac Shakur.
- Students will complete a Venn diagram of both poets.
- On the board or Smart board the Teacher will sweep students for their list of differences and similarities of poets and list them on the board.
- Teacher will have a whole group discussion on the comparisons and contrasts of these poets and further discuss how their life experiences affect their writing of poetry.
- Teacher will introduce to students Emily’s Dickenson’s poem “Hope” and Tupac’s Poem “A Rose Grows in Concrete” (access on line) ask students to write three to five questions (Costa level three questions) about these poems.
- Students will compare themes of these poems and write a brief interpretation of both poems and think, pair, share. End with brief whole class discussion and exit slips.

Activity Five: (Extension) Analysis of poetry: (To add rigor to English Honors/Gifted classes or intensive Reading Classes)

- Teacher will provide students with a list of poets/poems (Walt Whitman, Robert Frost, William Wordsworth, Sara Teasdale, Langston Hughes,) to choose from and have the students select one in order to write a two page explication (Suggested cites for examples of poetry explications- http://www.unc.edu/depts/wcweb/handouts/poetry-explication.html; http://brainstorm-services.com/wcu-2002/critical-approaches.html; http://www.brocku.ca/english/jlye/criticalreading.php; http://occawlonline.pearsoned.com/bookbind/pubs/books/long_kennedy_literature_8/chapter19/objectives/deluxe-content.html; http://www.danagioia.net/essays/efrost2.htm)

- Teacher will provide an example of an explication on the smart board or on paper to model how to write an explication, the teacher will pass out a poem to students and teacher will begin to write on the board a brief explication.

- The teacher will ask students to add their analysis of the poem and teacher will write their entries of analysis on the board about 1 to 2 paragraphs with students finishing it in small groups on their own with teacher supervising and providing feedback

- Students who have selected their poet/poem will begin writing their own explication

- Teacher will pair students with writing partners to assist in editing their explications and teacher will conference with students for final submission of it prior to typing.

Activity Six (Extension) Free Verse or Haiku -To Inspire Students to Write Poems with Vivid Imagery from a unique view –

- Teacher should select photographs from google.com/pictures that inspires him/her because their enthusiasm will carry over to the students. Teacher can introduce two photographic portraits or nature scenes on the board.

- Students will select one picture to write their free verse poem(is an open, unstructured form of poetry without any rhymes, stanzas, etc.) or haiku poem (show examples of a haiku poem and explain the rules (It often centers on nature, doesn’t rhyme; they follow a pattern Line 1: 5 syllables Line 2: 7 syllables Line 3: 5 syllables) and then write one or two together as a class in whole group. Then students write their own based on photo).

- Teacher will play music to add ambiance and stimulate students’ creative thoughts.

- Teacher will display or distribute lists of vivid verbs, adverbs, and adjectives (see Chart of words -Materials) on the board or smart board for students to steal words and brainstorm ideas and write what comes to mind as they describe the portrait/nature scene or part of it in free verse form or a haiku poem(s).

- Students will think, pair, share their ideas from the photographs with the person next to them and then share their free verse or haiku poems with the class.

Use Pattern Poems to Scaffold Students Poetic Writing – This creates an opportunity for students who struggle with reading to compose poetry using recognized literature as a model.

- The teacher can introduce pattern poems (see Pattern Poem(s)-Materials - I suggest giving students a chance to chose which pattern poem to complete – some humorous, assertive or inspiring) where students take the first three or four words of each sentence from a well know poem and then finishes it in their own words.

- This helps to get students started without much frustration and as their creative juices begin flowing they begin to experience the process of creating poetry.
- I suggest that the teacher review the interpretation of poem first then model in a whole class setting how to do a pattern poem with students and then have them select and complete one.
- After creating a pattern poem, they can embark on a more structured poem of their own for their personal booklet of poems for example.

Activity Seven: Writing personal poetry books: After students have gained experience writing poetry in a cooperative group and individually, they will begin writing their own personal booklets of poems. It is good idea to allow students to enter the poems that they have written in class so far into their personal booklets of poems if they desire especially for intensive classes.

- Teacher will ask for students input in naming their booklets and/or poetry slam. It gives them more ownership. Let students know upfront that their booklets are their keepsakes to remember their high school experiences and will be returned to them after grading.
- Teacher will assign each student a writing partner to help them edit each other’s poems or give constructive feedback. Do carefully partner students that have varying levels of language, reading skills and personalities so that they can help motivate each other.
- Assignment guidelines: Teacher will distribute poetry project guide sheets (see poetry project guidelines - Materials) and explain it on the smart board have the students repeat the due dates. (I actually have them sign that they received the guide sheet to avoid passing them repeatedly to the same students.)
- Teacher will distribute poetry folders for each student to keep all their poems under construction and notes of brainstorm ideas, word pools, lists of terms, and phrases to incorporate into their poems.
- Teacher will place on smart board/dry erase board or distribute copies of Collecting Words and Creating a Word Pool from the book “Poem Crazy” Chapter one by Susan Goldsmith Wooldridge.
- Students will select 8 poems from mandatory topics (listed on the personal booklet of poems guide sheet - Materials) and 4 open topics (any topics students want except vulgaries) using different types of poems and peer edit their poems with their designated writing partner.
- Students will begin constructing their poems in class. (Based on the dynamics and level of the class, teacher can give students time in class to construct or type their poems as well as at home)
- Clarify due dates and late deadlines and explain the rubric (see under rubric - Materials).
- One way to ensure that the majority of students complete the project is to use a sliding scale of early, on time, late due dates as well as making the project worth several grades.

Activity Eight: Publishing Annual Poetry Anthology/Program/Memento of event:

- Each students will select one of their favorite poems from personal poetry books to recite at the poetry slam.
- This poem will be entered into the classes annual poetry book (see picture of “Growing Pains – Expressions of Poetry from the Heart” poetry anthology) that will be used as the program to be distributed to each guest attending the poetry slam as well for each student as memento of the poetry slam event. Ensure Table of Contents listing title of poem and page # will be in the order in which each student will recite their poem at the poetry slam.

Activity Nine: Teen Expressions Poetry Slam: Teacher will set dates, times, and venue with principal/activity director asap and decide whether during school or after school is best.

- Recitation Preparation: Teacher will show/explain the rubric used to judge their recitation performances so that students know how they will be evaluated (see Teen Expressions Poetry Slam Rubric under materials) and remind students of public speaking and poetry etiquette (see Preparing for Poetry Recitations/Public Speaking Tips - Materials)
- After students have selected the poem that they will recite at the poetry slam, students will begin practicing recitation by repeatedly reading (repeated reading strategy to build fluency and prosody) their poems. They should read aloud several times to themselves practicing their cadence and when to pause for emphasis and increasing their volume especially at the beginning of each sentence as well as regaining eye contact with audience at end of each sentence.
- Teacher will encourage students to practice reciting their poems in the mirror at home.
- Students will read their poem with their designated partner or small group to work on skills they will be judged on (see Teen Expressions Poetry Slam Rubric - Materials) i.e. prosody, cadence, diction, voice moderation/projection, voice inflection, and eye contact.
- Students will practice recitation in front of the class with microphone if available.
- Teacher and class will model and provide constructive feedback on students’ performance and tell the class that emphasis will be placed on constructive comments first i.e. what they are doing well and second, what they need to improve.
- Teacher will show examples of performance recitations using the DVD entitled “Bringing Poetry to Life – The Poetry Lounge 3 – The Power of Performance” or “Russell Simmons presents Brave New Voices”.
- Poetry Slam Preparation: Teacher will show the eight available Committees Work sheets (see under Materials) on the Smart board and explain the plans.
- Teacher will explain to students that this is a student centered activity in which they can implement their novel ideas and they have the responsibility to manage their committee work with the teacher acting as facilitator.
- Teacher will distribute the committee sign up list (see Committee Work-Materials). Students will sign up for committee work as part of their project grades. (I strongly suggest teachers keep copies of committee lists after students have signed up and maintain flexibility over changes however after an allotted time students have to be held accountable for committee work by reporting their progress also, providing encouragement and immediate feedback helps).
- Teacher will establish a designated time during class for committees to meet and work.
- Students will work cooperatively in their committee groups to make suggestions regarding the venue, decorations; food and report on progress by writing a brief reflection on their progress each time they meet during class time (See Committee Work Materials).
- Teacher will hold a final day of practice via a mock poetry slam with his/her classes to work through the glitches and tweak student performances and last minute preparations.
- Students, with teacher’s input, shall select three adult judges (teachers who are available but preferably do not teach the same grade level or students) and two reliable senior students (not enrolled in the classes) will judge for best poem/best presentation with first, second, and third prize. Students should be allowed to decide on which awards they are willing to work for – my students decided that all students who recited a poem in the slam would receive a medallion and sachet of candy as they exited the stage. For the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place prizes, a $35, 30, 25 Visa Gift Card works well but there’s a $3 activation fee each.
Introduction to Poetry - Discuss and answer the following questions

List everything you know about Poetry

Committee Two: Invitations/Passes Distribution
Once class decides on venue and date with teachers input, students will write invitations with date, time, place, purpose, time, who is inviting. Write the poetry etiquette on the invitation: Public speaking or reciting poems takes courage and can be challenging (whether from memory or reading it) so it is important that we respect the ambiance of the poetry scene. With that in mind, there is basic etiquette required to give this avenue of self expression the respect it deserves. First please turn off or silence all cell phones; Refrain from talking during recitations; snap your fingers if you like or identify with the poem; do not interrupt the poet while he or she is reciting even if you do not understand or are confused by the poem. Distribute the invitations or flyers to all invited administrators, teachers, parents, community leaders, the press if principal permits. Teacher will supervise creation of passes for students who need to be excused from class to assist with set up of poetry slam and teacher should email to other teachers for whom students are requested to be excused from respective class(es). Committee Four: Masters of Ceremonies
Welcome all guests, administrators, teachers and students. Announce any dignities and thank them for coming. Make sure to thank (if applicable) Education Fund Contributors for funds to help make this event possible, thank the principal(s), and your teacher(s). Introduce poetry slam etiquette; ask all participants to please turn off cell phones or put electronic devices on silence, ask audience to refrain from talking during poet’s recitation; if you like or identify with something said by a poet, ask audience to snap before and after each poetry reading. Do not laugh or talk while poet is reciting let the poet finish the poem nonetheless. Present medallion awards to each student after they have performed and a sachet of candy (if committee agrees and funds are available). After the end of the recitations thank participants, judges, parents, community leaders for coming. Tell the audience that winners will be announced. Be creative.

Types of Poems

Couplets: are two-line stanzas that rhyme.

Examples: Voice of instruments fill the air

Sounds of music everywhere

The violins sing

As the tambourines ring.

KellyMeyer

Couplets will turn out to be rather disappointing unless you have a plan. Think of telling a little story, or describing an activity such as a concert, a ball game, a classroom- Do not try to use the same rhyming pattern in all the lines as it will probably. Think about writing from a different perspective on each stanza.

Quatrain: a four line rhyming poem. A quatrain is formed by two rhyming couplets? This pattern is called a a b b. Other quatrain patterns are a b a b.

Tyger! Tyger! burning bright (a) In the forests of the night, (a)
What immortal hand or eye (b) The mountain frames the sky (a)
Could frame thy fearful symmetry? (b) As a shadow of an eagle flies by. (a)
From William Blake's "The Tyger" With clouds hanging at its edge (b)
The Mountain Donna Brock A climber proves his courage on its rocky ledge. (b)

Haiku: a 17 syllable, three line form of Japanese verse, which almost always uses

I walk across sand
And find myself blistering
In the hot, hot heat Melodic starlight
Serenade us with your song
In the twilight hours.

Falling to the ground, Shy little songbird
I watch a leaf settle down where is your bright color now?
In a bed of brown. On this dreary day?

List Poem: The writer is telling you something--pointing something out--There's a beginning and end to it, like in a story--The list is arranged with stylistic consistency and the words are arranged to create a parallel structure.

Sick by Shel Silverstein

"I cannot go to school today," I'm sure that my left leg is broke--
Said little Peggy Ann McKay. My hip hurts when I move my chin,
"I have the measles and the mumps, My belly button's caving in,
A gash, a rash and purple bumps. My right eye.
My mouth is wet, my throat is dry, My tonsils are as big as rocks,
I'm going blind in my right eye. I've counted sixteen chicken pox
My nose is cold, my toes are numb. And there's one more--that's seventeen,
I have a sliver in my thumb. And don't you think my face looks green?
My back is wrenched, my ankle's sprained, My leg is cut--my eyes are blue--
My 'pendix pains each time it rains. It might be instamatic flu.
My nose is cold, my toes are numb. I have a hangnail, and my heart is--what?
My mouth is wet, my throat is dry, There is a hole inside my ear.
My tonsils are as big as rocks, I have a hangnail, and my heart is--what?
I've counted sixteen chicken pox What's that? What's that you say?
And there's one more--that's seventeen, You say today is. . .Saturday?
And don't you think my face looks green? G'bye, I'm going out to play!"
Sestina: a poem composed of six six-line stanzas and a three-line conclusion. Each line ends with one of six key words. The alternative of these six words in different positions but always at the ends of lines in the poem’s six stanzas creates a rhythmic verbal pattern that unifies the poem.

Example of Sestina:

The first couple of stanzas of a sestina may look like this

Over the world we shall travel (A)
And listen to the whales sing (B)
Far beneath us in the ocean, (C)
Where the water stretches into infinity, (D)
And all we can see is the blue (E)
Of the sea that is deep. (F)

We share our thoughts, those simple and deep (F)

Free Verse: simply flows. It does not have a particular pattern. It may have some rhyming phrases or none at all. However, it always expresses an idea or a story or an impression in a rhythmic form.

Example of free Verse:

My parents still think I’m their little girl.
I don’t want them to see me getting bigger,
Bigger every week., almost too big to hide it now.
But if I don’t go home, where can I go?
Jason said, ......

Dying (aka I heard a fly buzz when I died ) by Emily Dickinson

I heard a fly buzz when I died;
The stillness round my form
Was like the stillness in the air
Between the heaves of storm.

Limerick poem: a five-line poem written for humor or fun. The first and third lines have five syllables, the second line contains seven syllables

Limerick from the Book of Nonsense  by Edward Lear

There was an Old Man with a gong,
Who bumped at it all day long;
But they called out, 'O law!
You're a horrid old bore!'
So they smashed that Old Man with a gong.

Name Poem: an acrostic type poem using the letters in a person’s name

Nicky by Marie Hughes

Nicky is a Nurse
It's her chosen career
Children or Old folks
Kindness in abundance
Year after year

Concrete poem: looks like the subject of the poem – is written in a shape that suggests the subject of the poem.

Narrative poem: tells a story, much like a rap song
John Barleycorn by Robert Burns

There was three kings into the east,
Three kings both great and high,
And they hae sworn a solemn oath
John Barleycorn should die.

Collage poem: made up of ideas that seem unrelated

Theme poem: a poem written to explore a chosen theme or subject

Sonnet: English (or Shakespearean) sonnets are lyric poems that are 14 lines long falling into three coordinate quatrains and a concluding couplet.

O thou my lovely boy (Part of 126 Sonnet)
by William Shakespeare

O thou, my lovely boy, who in thy power
Dost hold Time's fickle glass his fickle hour;
Who hast by waning grown, and therein show'st
Thy lovers withering, as thy sweet self grow'st.

Subject poem or Ode: is written for an occasion or on a particular subject. They are usually dignified and more serious as a form than other forms of poetry. Modern odes include sarcastic poems about various subjects, including velcro and vegetable. An Ode is a poem that contains some form of rhyming pattern which is about a certain subject and contains the word "ode" in the title.

An example of an ode would be:

Ode to Myself

Just as Walt Whitman would say,
if he were with me today.....

There is a "Song of Myself",
A song that sings of my internal wealth.
A child of God, and also able to make a friend out of every foe.
For I have true love inside
Any egotisms have surely died.
The beautiful song that strives to be heard this song is clearer than any songbird.
There is no reason to feel pity
for my God and his love is always with me.
And I will try to learn as much as I should,
knowing that there are no problems,
just opportunities to be good.

Cooperative Group Poem:

Directions for group roles when building a contemporary group poem:

Image Creator: Your role is to provide two concrete images to show relationships. Try to keep these as concrete as possible. For example, in Clifton’s poem “grown daughter,” the image of peeling onions works well to ground the reader and bring authenticity to the piece.

Word Creator: Your role is to provide five exotic words that have nothing to do with the relationship. The group then must work these words into the poem.

Metaphor Creator: Your role is to supply two metaphors or similes. In order to create a sense of unity in the poem, you should take a look at the image creator’s images before you write the metaphors.

Rhythm Creator: Your role is to provide five words that sound interesting, intriguing, or rhyme (but no obvious rhyme, please). You may wish to work with the language keeper, juxtaposing your words against his or hers.

How to start the process of writing a poem: after each role is assigned and words are listed, the best way to begin is to write down the details – Grab your pen, and as you consider your topic, write down a simple list of random details. Don’t concern yourself, at first, with structure or organization. You’ll be surprised how a poem will come together.

The Turkey Shot Out of the Oven by Jack Prelutsky

The turkey shot out of the oven
And rocketed into the air,
It knocked every plate off the table
And partly demolished a chair.

It ricocheted into a corner
And burst with a deafening boom,
Then splattered all over the kitchen,
Completely obscuring the room.

It stuck to the walls and the windows,
It totally coated the floor,
There was turkey attached to the ceiling,
Where there'd never been turkey before.
It blanketed every appliance,
It smeared every saucer and bowl,
There wasn't a way I could stop it,
That turkey was out of control.
I scraped and I scrubbed with displeasure,
And thought with chagrin as I mopped,
That I'd never again stuff a turkey
With popcorn that hadn't been popped!

Out of the night that covers me,
Black as the Pit from pole to pole,
I thank whatever gods may be
For my unconquerable soul.

In the fell clutch of circumstance
I have not winced nor cried aloud.
Under the bludgeoning of chance
My head is bloody, but unbowed.

Beyond this place of wrath and tears
Looms but the Horror of the shade,
And yet the menace of the years
Finds, and shall find, me unafraid.

It matters not how strait the gate,
How charged with punishments the scroll.
I am the master of my fate:
I am the captain of my soul.

Tips for Preparing to Recite Poetry

http://articles.poetryx.com/66/

Know your material. The best way to boost your confidence level when reciting poetry is to know your material inside and out. For tips on learning your poem, see our guide on “How to Memorize a Poem.”

Recite phrases naturally. There’s nothing worse when hearing someone recite. A poem. Than to hear them pause slightly for each line or stanza break in a poem. When reciting a poem, ignore line breaks and even most punctuation. Just try to recite each sentence or phrase as naturally as possible, as if you were speaking to someone one-on-one.

Speak loudly and clearly. If you’re going to be reciting to a large audience you’ll likely have a microphone - but regardless of whether you speak into a microphone or just to a few people, your recital will sound better if you project your voice. Imagine the sound coming from deep in your belly. Imagine each word and phrase rising up, lifting out of your mouth and flying across the room like a bird. This visualization sounds silly but it’s important to think of your words as lifting over your audience. You want to make sure that the hard-of-hearing grandmother in the back of the room can understand every single word you’re saying (regardless of whether or not such a person is actually present when you recite your poem).

Slow down. If you’re nervous when standing up and speaking in front of a crowd, you’ll likely tend to speed up so as to get it over more quickly. Be aware, though, that if you’re afraid of people judging your performance, ruining your recitation by rushing through it won’t improve their estimation of your abilities. Speak slowly and enunciate each word clearly. You’ll know you’ve slowed down enough when you feel as though you’re reciting too slowly. Try to resist the impulse to speed up.

Be expressive! The only thing worse than a performer pausing awkwardly at the end of each line is a performer who drones on in monotone. Use the context of your poem to determine its delivery. If a poem is sad, recite it like you just heard that a friend’s loved one just died and you are offering your condolences. Is the poem funny? Recite it as if it were the funniest joke you’ve ever heard. Most of all, plan areas in the poem to emphasize. Plan pauses in your delivery (although don’t pause too long or people will think you’re finished and start applauding - and starting up again when your audience thinks you’ve finished is awkward and embarrassing). The key word here is “plan.” Good performances require proper planning.

(Tips for preparing/reciting poetry-Materials)
Continuation of  Tips for Preparing to Recite Poetry [http://articles.poetryx.com/66/]

Record yourself. After you’ve practiced in private on speaking slowly, clearly, and projecting your voice so people can hear you, you should record yourself (either on audio or video tape) and review your performance. Did you speak too quickly? Mumble? If you videotaped yourself, examine your posture. Are you slouching? Fiddling with your hands?

Knowing the weaknesses in your performance will help you to focus on those areas and improve on them.

Now that you know your poem, have practiced reciting it, and are ready to perform your poem in front of an audience, here are some tips to consider to help your performance go off without a hitch.

Dress for success. Formal clothing will help your presentation - but of course you’ll have to rely on your judgment to dress appropriately. If you’re reciting in front of your high school English class it may not be a good idea to wear a suit and tie, but if you’re going to be performing at a special function or a program of poetry where you’ll be reciting alongside other poetry performers, it may be more appropriate to wear a suit or a nice dress (I would also suggest that your attire be gender appropriate - not that there’s anything wrong with a man in a dress - it’s just that you want people to focus on the words you’re reciting, and not your appearance. So dress conservatively for best results).

Strike a pose. How you stand will affect how you recite a poem. Don’t slouch. Keep your shoulders back (so you can throw those words out farther) and don’t put your hands in your pockets - it makes your shoulders slouch and ruins your vocal projection.

Personally I really like reciting behind podiums because I can rest my hands on them. However, try to resist the urge to hold on for dear life, and don’t lean on the podium. Try to stand still - instead of rocking back and forth, try to focus your nervous energy into the words, delivering them with more intensity and power.

Showtime: Tips for Giving a Good Poetry Performance

Don’t look down. Now that you’re standing up straight, you also want to be sure to recite out to the audience. Don’t look down at your feet. It helps to pick a point in the back of the room just slightly over the (Tips for preparing/reciting poetry-Materials) heads of the audience and look out to it rather than at the faces in the crowd. If you’re on stage you may have the benefit of bright stage lights, which means that you’ll barely be able to see your audience. But either way, be sure to look out, not down. (Tips for preparing/reciting poetry-Materials)

Oscillate while you recite. While you’re looking out, not down, you’ll also want to turn slightly from one side of the room to the other to make sure you address everyone in the room. Think of an oscillating fan that rotates back and forth to cool off the entire room, or a water sprinkler system that rotates to spread water to all of the grass.

Get someone to spot you. Even if you’ve memorized your material and think you know it, at times you may freeze up due to being nervous, or forget how the next part of the poem starts. Ask a friend to sit near the front of the audience with a copy of the poem so they can help prompt you with a line if you get stuck.

Don’t qualify or apologize. Before you start, don’t try to lower your audience’s expectations by telling them how you just learned this poem and don’t know it well.

If you mess up, don’t apologize, just start the last phrase over and continue.

Relax. Messing up a poetry recitation isn’t the end of the world. Keep in mind that people want you to do well - they’re all there to support you and hear some poetry. The better your performance goes the greater the audience’s enjoyment, so remember that they want you to succeed and are happy that you’re reciting a poem for them.

And if they aren’t happy to hear your poem, then to hell with them!

Of course, these are only some basic tips. Performing well in front of an audience takes practice and experience, and for most people overcoming shyness and fear of public speaking will be the biggest stumbling blocks to overcome. JLV was a student in my intensive reading class that basically had one foot out the school door. He was just going through the motions. At first when the personal book of poems project began he was indifferent, but after I showed the poetry recitation DVDs, he started asking questions. We brainstormed topics and he started opening up to his feelings. Twelve poems later he turned in his book let.

Goodbye Grandfather

When my grandfather died
It was terrible thing to see death
I and my family were destroyed
As they lowered him down
My cousin fall to the ground
Weeping and moaning at his death
No one took a breath
I learned that he was in the military
As they played the trumpet
They buried him and his coffin
Everyone stood in tears as he was fallin
For a week the whole family was in solitude

Furthermore, this project allows students to express themselves in a forum that was familiar but not necessarily accessible. Poetry is another form of rap. Therefore, students know poetry but not necessarily as poetry. Once we showed them that they can express whatever they want to, keeping it clean, express they did.

TWO MINDS AND ONE PEN

I WANT TO GO OUT, I WANT TO STAY IN.
I WANT TO BE LIKE A BIRD AND SORE TO HEIGHTS THAT NO MAN MAY EVER SEE. I WANT TO BE A LONELY CAGED BIRD SO THAT NO ONE MAY EVER HARM ME.
I WANT TO GO OUT, I WANT TO STAY IN.
I WANT TO BE A FISH IN THE WIDE OPEN SEA SWIMMING AND EXPLORING THE WIDE OPEN REEFS. I WANT TO BE A PET GOLD FISH AND SWIM AROUND MY FISH BOWL SO THAT I MAY NEVER GET LOST AND NOTHING MAY NEVER CHANGE.
I WANT TO GO OUT, I WANT TO STAY IN.
I WANT TO BE A LION AND ROAM AROUND THE MYSTERIOUS JUNGLE. I WANT TO BE A HOUSE SO I CAN AND STAY IN MY OWN BACK YARD.
I WANT TO GO OUT, I WANT TO STAY IN.
I WANT TO BE AN ELEGANT BUTTERFLY AND GO FROM GARDEN TO GARDEN. I WANT TO BE THAT FLOWER IN THAT GARDEN AND HOPEFULLY BLEND IN.
I WANT TO GO OUT, I WANT TO STAY IN.
I WANT TO A RARE BEAUTIFUL FLOWER IN A BED OF DAISIES. I WANT TO BE THE GRASS THAT EVERYONE SEES THAT'S JUST ORDINARY.

She left

By: Anonymous

My sister, “the trophy daughter”.
Always exactly what they wanted
Never failed, never screwed up
Always was perfect, always had luck.
But what was underneath no one knew
That she was alone, something else grew.
A different person it was true she was,
When you asked her “why?”
Lucky you if you even got “cause”.
 Alone she was, she needed change.
She was different, she was strange.
Until she finally she exploded and decided to never look back.
That’s the most I’ve ever cried.
That was the day she no longer decided to lie.
I came to an empty closet.
Asking for my only sibling,
Between tears and her recalling her childhood fears.
All she answered was “She left.”

THE ULTIMATE GARDEN

MY GARDEN IS A WONDERFUL GARDEN FILLED WITH LOVE AND EXCITEMENT.
MY FRIENDS ARE LIKE ROCKS
STRONG AND FAITHFUL THEY NEVER LET ME DOWN.
NO MATTER WHAT HAPPENS THEY STICK BY ME THROUGH THICK AND THIN.
MY FLOWERS BLOOM IN THE SPRING TIME TO BE PRETTY AND HANDSOME.
THEN THEY BLOSSOM AND FLOURISH ALL DAY.
BUT IF WEEPS APPEAR THEY ARE KILLED AND COVERED BY MY ROCKS.
The Scent of my flowers CANNOT BE TOUCHED.
NOT EVEN BY Humming BIRDS AND BUMBLE BEES.
OH WHAT A WONDERFUL GARDEN IT IS.
OH WHAT A WONDERFUL GARDEN IT CAN BE.
THUS I HAVE THE ULTIMATE GARDEN.
